PAROLE PARDON TO COLLINS.

Former Station Agent in Vernon Who Shot H. A. Staten While Intoxicated Was Sentenced in 1913.

Hugh Collins, former station agent in Vernon, who shot H. A. Staten in the arm while intoxicated June 8, 1913, has been given a parole pardon by Gov. Horace F. Graham, upon the recommendation of Supt. R. H. Walker. Late in the same month in which the shooting took place Collins was sentenced to not less than seven years nor more than nine years in the state prison in Windsor. He has served a little more than half the minimum sentence.

Collins has been the editor of the Prison Monitor since it was started late in 1914. Director of State Institutions J. E. Weeks, it is understood, will arrange for the publication of the Monitor, as it has been done in the past, so that the little sheet, which has become popular in the penal circles of the state, will not be lost.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Italian Forces Terribly Beaten by Austro-Germans.

One of the most striking features of the whole war has been the defeat of the Italian army, which has been struck at their weakest points by the Austro-German forces, and so terribly beaten that in three days they have lost more territory than they had won in a severe campaign of a year and a half.

The Germans, feeling confident of no trouble from the Russians, have evidently withdrawn immense numbers of men from the eastern front, combining them with the Austrians, have struck a terrible blow with suddenness. They have thrown the Italians into retreat, have inflicted terrible losses on them, and, according to the claims from Berlin have captured 180,000 prisoners. The Italians have not only given up the territory won from the Austrians, but they have retreated from the Isongo, have given up many miles of territory and several important villages of the northern part of their country to the invader.

Udine is one of the important cities surrendered to the Teutonic forces in their march forward. The Italians lost many of their mountain guns and other supplies. Great Britain, France and the United States will undoubtedly send reinforcements to Italy, and an important part of the help which this country will furnish will be in the form of additional shipping. The Italians have long been in need of more munitions and arms, and it is probable that the deficiency in this direction went a long way toward making their last disaster possible.

The latest reports are more hopeful and indicate that the Italian retreat has been checked and that Gen. Cardona is now in a position to give effective opposition to the hordes pressing closely against him.

On the western battlefield little of a decisive result has been reported, although both the French and British have made some gains. More air raids have been directed on London, but in the last attack only three or four of the 27 air planes which joined in the attack were able to penetrate the defenses of the metropolis, and the damage which these inflicted was not serious.

Gen. Pershing's Americans are now in the front line of trenches on the western battle front, but the news which has come from them is meagre. Brazil has come into the war on the side of the allies. The Brazilians are greatly incensed at the revelation of plots showing that the Germans intended to invade their country as a part of their campaign to show their contempt for the Monroe Doctrine.

Up to late yesterday afternoon the treasury department had made no definite statement on the amount subscribed to the second Liberty loan, on which the campaign closed Saturday night. It is generally believed, however, that the maximum amount asked for, $500,000,000, was fully subscribed. New England was asked to take $500,000,000, but did not equal this mark, although its total is above $475,000,000.

American shipyards will complete 1,000,000 tons of ships by March 1. Chairman Hurley of the shipping board told a conference Wednesday of the Atlantic coast builders and government officials called to discuss the speeding up of the shipbuilding program. "In the whole of 1916," said Mr. Hurley, "we turned out a little over 750,000 tons. We will achieve in the next four months far more than we achieved in 12 months. The new goal of our expectations is 10 times the production of 1916."

A disastrous blaze which wrecked two of the finest of the Baltimore and Ohio terminal piers at Baltimore, and a British steamship and caused it to burn and sink with the probable loss of 10 of its crew Tuesday night. Vice President J. M. Davis of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad said it was the belief of railroad officials that the blaze was of incendiary origin, as credible witnesses stated they saw flames leap from piers Nos. 8 and 9 at five points almost simultaneously. The total loss will be over $5,000,000, which is said to be a conservative estimate. The steamer had on board 80 anti-submarine shells from a British port. These exploded when the ship took fire.

EXPERIENCES AS NURSE.

Interesting Talk by Marion M. Rice on Her Work in Europe—Emphasized Need of Surgical Dressings.

To an audience that filled the ground floor and part of the balcony of the Auditorium Miss Marion M. Rice talked for something over an hour Wednesday afternoon on her experiences as a Red Cross nurse in France. The meeting was to have been held in the Unitarian parish house, but so large a crowd gathered that at the last moment it became necessary to move to larger quarters.

Miss Rice was introduced by Mrs. J. J. Estey, president of the local branch of the Red Cross, who referred to her as a Brattleboro girl in whose work the town in general and the Red Cross members in particular had great interest. Miss Rice told of her departure for France in February, 1915, on the first ship to sail after Germany's declaration concerning ruthless U-boat warfare, mentioning the discomforts of the voyage and the relief when it was safely completed. She then described at some length the hospital at Yvetot to which her unit was first attached, and gave an outline of the work that was required to prepare the hospital at St. Valery-en-Caux which her unit later took over and carried on until early last summer when they were put in charge of an orthopedic hospital at Evreux.

In speaking of the needs of the Red Cross Miss Rice made it plain that surgical dressings were of first importance, saying that while if necessary wounded soldiers could live in such clothes as it was possible to get abroad they could not live unless proper dressings were available for their wounds, and that the material for the manufacture of surgical dressings was not obtainable in Europe. She spoke of the increased efficiency that had been gained through the affiliation of the various relief organizations with the American Red Cross, and in passing mentioned the joy with which the allied nations hailed America's entrance into the war.

Miss Rice enlivened her talk with numerous anecdotes based upon her personal experiences, and gave a large amount of first-hand information which was of particular interest to local Red Cross workers.

U. S. BONDS DEPOSITED TO SECURE CIRCULATION.

U. S. BONDS PLEDGED TO SECURE U. S. DEPOSITS.

BONDS OTHER THAN U. S. BONDS PLEDGED TO SECURE POSTAL SAVINGS DEPOSITS.

A glance at the names should be sufficient to indicate the nature of these three items which appear among the Resources of THE VERMONT NATIONAL.

For it has already been explained that the Bank has outstanding, and appearing in the statement on the Liability side, some $148,000 of circulating notes. To secure these it has on deposit with the U. S. Treasurer $150,000 par value of U. S. bonds.

Other U. S. bonds are on deposit as security for any deposits which the Secretary of the Treasury may desire to make in this bank. And to secure the government in its deposit of funds taken in by the Postal Savings Banks, THE VERMONT NATIONAL has deposited bonds other than U. S. bonds to the amount of $7,000.

The advantage to the bank of these deposits is that the bank gets the interest on the bonds, and that in most cases the liabilities which they secure are unfluctuating. In other words the security makes it improbable that in regard to these items there will be any sudden demand on the bank's supply of cash.
